Needless to say, it's a good idea to go after corruption, but, unlike almost everything else Pat Leahy does, which we love, this wreaks of racism, naming mostly African countries. After all, the PM of Denmark almost lost his election last week because of charges of rampant corruption.

Would your office be willing to ask Lowey to NOT agree to this. This is not the way to do it.

Egyptian Gaza Border Security Initiatives

The Egyptian Defense Ministry has taken several tangible steps recently to enhance security on the Gaza border. Last month, the Defense ministry placed border security equipment worth $165 million in FMS purchases at the top of their priority list for FY08. In addition, they have requested $23 million more in FMS purchases of tunnel detection and exploitation equipment. These steps are a direct result of recommendations from a team of US Army Corps of Engineers who conducted a site survey of the Gaza border in mid-November.

The Army Corps of Engineers experts were given uninhibited access to the Gaza border and performed a sit-survey along the Raffa section. They concluded that the situation in Raffa presents a “worst case scenario “ for detecting and exploiting clandestine tunnels. The tunnels are small in diameter, long and very deep. Their openings are in dense urban areas that preclude rigorous surveillance on the Gaza side of the border. Other openings are in agricultural fields and are sandbagged and covered with up to 2 meters of soil for later use.

The team provided a variety of recommendations and technology which the Defense Ministry immediately accepted. The technology recommended is readily available commercially, but will need significant customization for the Border Security Forces’ applications.

The experts also recommended a follow-on US team to train an Egyptian Tunnel Detection, Exploitation, and Remediation Team. This cadre will receive detection training, exploitation and law enforcement techniques and practices, as well as how to maintain a tunnel database and operate detection equipment.

Allowing the inspection team to perform the site survey and moving border security items to the top of the priority list for FMS purchases are exactly the steps the US government has been encouraging Egypt to take.

The Honorable Robert Byrd
Senate Appropriations Committee
S-131 Capitol Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Senator Byrd:

On behalf of the 275 member companies and 630,000 employees we represent, the Aerospace Industries Association (AIA) urges Congress to fully fund the Administration's Fiscal Year 2008 FMF request for Egypt.

It is crucial for the United States to support moderate States in the Middle East so that our common national security interest goals are achieved. The FMF program to Egypt not only ensures that our strategic regional goals are realized, but it directly translates into jobs for Americans across the country. Under the Foreign Military Financing (FMF) program, U.S. aerospace and defense workers provide military articles, services, and training to the Egyptian military that support our common regional stability goals and enable Egypt to enhance their defensive capabilities against common threats.

The U.S.-Egyptian defense partnership offers many benefits to the United States. Among other things, Egypt hosts the biannual "Bright Star" military exercises with U.S. forces, maintains a field hospital at Bagram Air Base in Afghanistan, allows us to use their airspace and sea lanes to execute our military objectives, and shares valuable information with the U.S. in the War on Terrorism. As America continues to fight in both Afghanistan and Iraq, our security partnership with Egypt will remain a critical asset.

For these reasons, we respectfully urge Congress to support fully the Administration's Fiscal Year 2008 Foreign Military Financing request for Egypt without restrictions.

Sincerely,
